ABOUT THE ARTISTS

ALISON BJORKEDAL, harp, received her bachelor's degree from the University of Oregon and her Doctorate of Musical Arts and Master's degree from the USC Thornton School of Music. She performed the world premiere of William Kraft's Encounters XII and has recorded that work for an upcoming release with Southwest Chamber Music. She performed on the ensemble's Complete Chamber Music of Carlos Chavez, Volume 4, which was nominated for a Best Classical Album in 2007 by Latin Grammy.

LISA EDELSTEIN, flute, is an active freelance musician in the Los Angeles area. She regularly plays with the Pasadena Symphony, the Long Beach Symphony, the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, the Los Angeles Master Chorale and the San Luis Obispo Mozart Festival. In Pasadena, she is a Hudson Fellow at the California Institute of Technology, where she teaches chamber music to very interesting students.

JAN KARLIN, viola, is Founding Executive Director of Southwest Chamber Music. She has played with the Boston Pops, Opera Company of Boston, and the Pacific and Long Beach Symphonies in California. She received her Bachelor's Degree from Tufts University, and her Master's Degree from Boston University. Ms. Karlin performed on Southwest Chamber Music's Complete Chamber Works of Carlos Chávez, Volumes 1 and 2, which received consecutive 2003 and 2004 GRAMMY Awards.

FEATURED COMPOSER

Toru Takemitsu \(1930-1996\)

Air was composed for Swiss flutist Aurèle Nicolet's approaching 70th birthday, and is, sadly, the last completed piece by Takemitsu. It was projected to be part of a work for flute, harp and orchestra that was never finished. Composed at the end of 1995, the work is a haunting testimonial, distilling the natural breath into the melodic world of Takemitsu's eternity.

Toward the Sea III was written in 1981 as a contribution to the Greenpeace Foundation's Save the Whales program. The titles of the movements were inspired by Herman Melville's Moby Dick. Takemitsu quoted Melville in the score: "Let the most absent-minded of men be plunged in his deepest reveries...and he will infallibly lead you to water...Yes, as everyone knows, meditation and water are wedded together."

Toward the Sea III was transcribed from the original version for alto flute and guitar. Takemitsu quotes the S-E-A in the German notation E flat - E natural - A.

And Then I Knew 'Twas Wind was composed in 1992 for Swiss flutist Aurèle Nicolet. The title is a quotation from a poem of Emily Dickinson. Takemitsu explained that the work "has as its subject the signs of the wind in the natural world and of the soul, or unconscious mind (or we would even call it 'dream') which continues to blow, like the wind, invisibly, through human consciousness." This piece demonstrates the influence Takemitsu took from the French composer, Claude Debussy.

Toru Takemitsu was born in Tokyo in 1930. After the war he began to study composition, though he remained basically self-taught. He wrote his first piece, Lento in due movimenti, at the age of twenty. Takemitsu was interested in many nonmusical art forms, such as modern painting, literature (particularly poetry), theater and film. In 1951, together with other composers and artists from the most divergent disciplines, he founded the "Experimental Workshop", a mixed-media group which soon became known for its avant-garde multi-media activities.

Takemitsu's interest in different artistic fields and his self-taught status deeply influenced his avant-garde style. He was using tape recorders to create musical collages out of "real" sounds, a style known as musique concrete. In the early sixties two new influences established themselves in Takemitsu's music: traditional Japanese music and nature. Whereas the influence of Arnold Schoenberg and Alban Berg were noticeable in the works of his early period, the French style of composition, particularly that of Debussy, remained the basis for his works thereafter. Takemitsu was also very receptive towards other music (jazz and pop) and, being an ardent film fan, he has also composed film music (e.g. Ran, Dodes'ka-Den). Although at home in the electronic media and film music, his most characteristic works are perhaps for chamber ensemble and large orchestra.

Fun Fact: Toru Takemitsu also wrote a detective novel, and appeared frequently on Japanese television as a celebrity chef.

“My music is like a garden, and I am the gardener. Listening to my music can be compared to walking through a garden and experiencing the changes in light, pattern and texture.”

‘MA’ – Space, breath, pause and silence

The Japanese concept of Ma greatly influenced the later music and life of Toru Takemitsu, while he rediscovered the music of his native Japan. Ma is an aesthetic sensibility that in music is often presented as an open space, a breath, a pause, or a silence found between one sound and another.

There is a spatial aspect to the idea of Ma. It can be experienced in the environs of a formal Japanese garden. Takemitsu often compared composing and listening to music to walking through a garden. He thought of instruments as similar to a garden’s various rocks, plants, and artifacts that together form a harmonious whole where no one part overpowers the rest. There is a spiritual element to Ma as well. The vacant space defined by sounds is rich ground for meditation and silence, and silence is the home of spirituality. Ma connects us to both the universe of the five senses and the unseen world beyond them.

For Takemitsu, Ma permeated the natural world, and nature was his great teacher. Ma touches the heart of nature, a sense of nature almost lost to modern society. As a result, many of Takemitsu’s pieces evoke themes of the natural world.

Takemitsu believed that spirits exist everywhere in nature, and each of his works was an expression of his love of nature.

Musical Vocabulary (from the California Standards for the Arts)

ALEATORIC MUSIC is when a certain number of compositional/performance decisions are left up to the performer, either before or during the actual performance. Learn more...
